Freshman invasion

New students arrive with strange items

By RACHEAL CARRUTHERS
Staff editor

Jim Carrey was one of the many faces seen — on a cardboard cutout — at Carman Hall as students moved in Thursday.

Life-size cardboard cutouts of Jim Carrey in Liar, Liar garb and Mike Meyers in British-flag undies a la Austin Powers were only a couple of the unusual items students brought to make their dorm rooms more like home.

The proud owners of the Meyers and Carrey cutouts, Chris Collins, a freshman business major and his roommate Robert O'Malley, a freshman art major, thought the cutouts gave their room character.

Other freshmen across campus were bringing their heroes to help make the first grueling year of college much more bearable.

Gladsky, Holmes resign offices

By DEANA POOLE
Administration editor

Two Eastern officials resigned in the midst of the controversy surrounding the English as a Second Language Program.

Rita Holmes, former director of the ESL program, and Thomas Gladsky, former dean of the Graduate Studies and International Programs, resigned from the university last week and both are now on administrative leave, said Jill Nilsen, special assistant to the president.

"Dr. Gladsky is on administrative leave, looking at other options," Nilsen said.

In a press release, Gladsky praised his colleagues and students for the success of and improvements made during the past two years to programs in Graduate Studies and International Programs. He gave no reason for his resignation to the university. Gladsky declined further comment.

Gladsky also declined comment for his wife, Holmes.

A statement from Terry Weidner, vice president for academic affairs, said Brian Bolter, associate dean of graduate studies, was appointed acting director of the ESL program. Weidner also said he will contact campus constituents for recommendations for a permanent replacement for the dean of the Graduate School and International Programs.

A letter citing student complaints about Eastern's ESL program was submitted to the Faculty Senate and discussed at their July 22 meeting.

Juan Carlos Garcia, an international student from Colombia, attended the meeting and spoke on behalf of international students.

Students within the program told the Senate some of the problems within the program include:

■ Allegations the ESL program does not have a teacher qualified to instruct students who require English as a second language. Garcia also claimed the program did not offer services full-time and there were not separate classes for varying levels of instruction.

■ Allegations that admission standards for incoming students are unclear and inconsistent.

■ Allegations that students are not effectively evaluated as to their

Mandatory seminar awaits Student Senate approval

Juniors and seniors might have to add one more workshop to their class load when they register for Spring semester this year.

The Career Services Orientation Seminar, a 30-minute workshop, describes the various services provided by the Career Planning and Placement Office.

Shirley Stewart, director of career services, said the seminars have been offered ever since she began working at Eastern nine years ago.

The program may include a provision that could block students from registering for the classes until they participate in the seminars. Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs, said requiring the seminars has not been finalized.

"Before it is finalized, we will get approval from the Student Senate," Hencken said. If the Student Senate doesn't approve the program, the counseling center will re-appraise its proposal, he said.

The counseling center will meet with Student Senate early this semester to discuss the seminars, Hencken said. Stewart said the Counseling Center will meet with the groups involved to discuss the feasibility of the requirement. If approved, the requirement could take effect as early as the Spring semester. Throughout this semester, the Career Planning and

Celebration not dampened by rainy Sunday weather

By CHRIS WISE
Staff writer

Although hampered by rain on Sunday, this year's Celebration-A Festival of Arts received a high grade from participants and vendors who spent the weekend in the North Quad enjoying the festivities.

"The first day was fine, but the second day was slow because of the rain," said Gary Lindsey, a vendor from Fenton, Missouri.

"Overall, I think everyone was satisfied with the weekend," said Von Ibbitson, a vendor who traveled from Albion, Ill. to work at Celebration. "It is a tough decision to put on a show like this and it takes a lot of work to support it," Ibbitson said.

It was the first celebration for both vendors, however each said that business was good despite the rain.

Dave Watson of Noble, Ill. came to Celebration on Saturday to take in a blues band called Mighty Joe Young, but said the food also was a main attraction.

"I love the different kinds of food they have around here, it's not just the fair-type food that you usually see," Watson said.

Linda Slaughter, of Mattoon, thought Celebration was spectacular. "I think everyone is having fun," Slaughter said.

Dan Crews, coordinator for Celebration, said Friday and Saturday was terrific.

"It was unfortunate about the rain, but we had two fabulous days," Crews said.

Originally, Celebration was held in the spring semester, but was moved to the fall semester. Moving the Celebration also provided a good introduction to new students and their parents to Charleston community."

◆ EASTERN IN CYBERSPACE

Eastern's home page now has new information: a weekly feature about events occurring on campus. This week's feature is about Celebration.

Vicki Woodard, editorial assistant in the department of media relations, said the feature is changed each week. Next week's feature will be Hands Across EIU.

Other links on Eastern's home page include services the university provides and information on Eastern professors, administrators and staff.

Woodard said the home page may be helpful for students because some professors have a syllabus on the page.

Anyone wanting to submit information for the weekly feature can contact Shelly Flock, coordinator of public information and media relations.

Check out Eastern's web site at <http://www.eiu.edu/>.

◆ OUTSTANDING FRATERNITY

The men of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity recently received several awards at a leadership seminar in Bowling Green, Ohio.

The fraternity was awarded the Lewis A. Plourd Fraternity Education Award for its excellent education programs, the Warren A. Cole Recruitment Program Award for its well-organized and effective recruitment program, the Alumni Publications Award for outstanding efforts in providing a quality newsletter and the Bruce Hunter McIntosh Standards for Chapter Excellence for its outstanding achievements in fraternal excellence.

In addition, the fraternity was presented the second place award for continuing endeavors toward positive alumni relations.

◆ RITUAL PARTICIPANT

Sean Thiel, a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, recently served as a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha's International Ritual Team at the fraternity's 26th Leadership Seminar.

Thiel was one of only 27 undergraduate students to serve on the team, which performed the fraternity's ritual in front of 400 members at the leadership seminar.

Cardboard sites ease campus recycling efforts

By SCOTT BOEHMER
Campus editor

Students moving into residence halls have been greeted by a new way to dispose of some of their garbage.

Fenced-in areas were set up outside dorms for students to dispose of leftover cardboard boxes. About 10 areas were set up and will be removed later this week.

All of the cardboard which is collected will be recycled as part of the university's mandate to recycle 40 percent of its waste by the year 2000. Recycling Coordinator Allan Rathe said recycling cardboard is not new this year, but providing a specific forum for it is.

In the past, maintenance crews went through dumpsters early in the semester to rescue cardboard to be recycled. However, safety concerns mandated that retrieval method be dumped.

"(Before we) usually just dug it out of the dumpsters, but due to health reasons, we decided to try something different," Rathe said. "We still dig them out of dumpsters, but with sticks and (other equipment)."

The fenced-in areas were set up close to dumpsters, where it is hoped students would use them while getting rid of their other garbage.

Rathe said the fenced-in areas were getting heavy use and several already had to be emptied. The fenced-in areas are only going to be set up at the start of the school year because of the amount of cardboard used.

progress or levels of competence.

■ ESL instructors are not qualified to teach English.

■ Allegations that materials are inadequate and reused for different levels of classes and the written costs of these materials are not consistent with the actual cost.

Garcia claimed that when he approached Holmes with his complaints, she threatened to take away his visa and remove him from the university.

Another concern about the ESL program was that the fees were allegedly paid directly to Holmes and not the Cashier's Office.

Faculty senate member Lankford Walker presented checks that Holmes had allegedly signed her name to and marked out "for deposit only - ESL Accounts."

Holmes' records of the ESL account were turned over to Jeff Cooley, Eastern's internal auditor for investigation.

Cooley examined the cash-handling procedures of the ESL program. Cooley said he found no evidence of misappropriations of funds.

"We found nothing that warranted further investigations on our part," Cooley said. "Our standpoint is that we have no problems with the program."

Cooley said he gave Weidner recommendations on how to improve the cash-handling procedures in the ESL program.

Consultants from Western Illinois University and the University of Illinois at Chicago evaluated the ESL program on the basis of interviews with students, Holmes, Gladsky and Eastern President David Jorns.

Weidner and Charles Evans, assistant vice president for academic affairs, were unavailable for comment.

political science major in McKinney Hall, decided he couldn't leave his Hero Songs CD at home. His Hercules toy also is a source of inspiration.

After searching the room for his much treasured possession, he sadly looked at his mom, "I must have left him at home," Brooks said.

He assured me that Hercules would not miss out on his first semester at Eastern.

Across campus in the North Tower of Carman Hall, were many students who, when asked, more than likely said, "I didn't bring anything weird."

The few female students who, when asked, actually admitted to bringing more than just the necessary, claimed stuffed animals as their weirdest room decoration.

A Strawberry Shortcake coat hanger and a pet monster are the oddities gracing the room of Aimee Dyllin, a freshman journalism major.

Some parents thought they were the weirdest things in their children's dorm rooms.

Many were happy their children were jumping into the semi-real world, but at the same time, they weren't really ready for their babies to leave the nest.

Placement Office will be evaluating the seminars and getting student feedback. Stewart said the Career Planning and Placement Office has sent e-mail messages to faculty advisers about the seminars.

"We are struggling for a way to explain these different services," Stewart said.

She said reasons for the possibility of the seminar being required is the fear of losing the number of employers that come to job fairs.

Stewart said 350 employers come to Eastern to interview prospective employees, but they don't fill their schedules. This could lead to a number of employers choosing not to visit Eastern for job fairs.

Another reason is the lack of students that are showing up to other career planning workshops. Stewart said only five students attended a workshop on job interviewing.

"There will be 52 seminars to best accommodate the students," Stewart said.

The fall seminars will be held Sept. 8 to 9, and Sept. 15 to 18.

The seminar is free, but students can pay a $15 fee to register to receive services provided by the Career Planning and Placement Office. Stewart said the Career Planning and Placement Office provides students with resume services, job searches and internship information.

Quakin' draws crowd, welcomes students to Eastern

More than 2,000 people attend annual event on Eastern's south quad Saturday

By ELLEN EARDLEY
Staff writer

No earthquake tremor could have shaken Eastern students out of their rooms and onto the South Quad faster than Quakin' the Quad did on Saturday night.

"Easily over 2,000 people showed up throughout the night," said Tom Ryan, University Board Chair. "I'd say this was one of the best Quakin's we've had since Quakin' started. It couldn't have been a better night for it."

Oversized games like the Rock Climb Wall, the Bungee Run, Jousting, Obstacle Course and Boxing were big crowd pleasers.

"I would have to say the Bungee Run was my favorite," said Perry Hill, a junior social science major. "I could put a little athletic ability into it."

Several of the games were periodically out of commission because of a circuit that was blown at Taylor Hall, Ryan said.

"At one point we had three events down, but we didn't lose much attendance because there were six or seven other events for them," Ryan said. "That's how we know Quakin' was successful."

The crowds gobbled down a total of about 650 bratwursts, hot dogs and hamburgers. The food was provided by Charleston caterer Bob Beavers.

"This year people really ate the hamburgers first," Beavers said. "Everything is almost gone and we've been here less than two hours."

At 8 p.m., the Chicago-based band The Squares took the main stage. Although most of the Quakin' crowd continued tackling the rock wall or jousting, some small clusters of students gathered around the stage.

"The Squares really are a lot of fun," said Jen Polkow, a junior speech communications major.

Molly Kerley, a junior pre-med major, had seen The Squares perform before.

"I like their music, and I've listened to their tapes," she said.

Senior economics major Larry Jennings compared The Squares' sound to Bon Jovi.

"I like them. They're just good," he said. "The music is catchy."

This is the second time The Squares have hit Eastern's campus. Their first performance was as the opening act to the Spring 1997 Collective Soul Concert.

After The Squares, comedian Joey Bags entertained students.

Later in the evening, students danced to music played by a DJ while music videos were broadcast on a big screen.

Games included high striker, fast pitcher, soccer kick, golf chipping and hockey shot.

Keeping up with tradition, students packed into the tent for bingo.

"Once again there wasn't a seat left in the house for bingo," Ryan said.

Throughout the night, the lines of people waiting to have caricatures or airbrushes drawn stretched the width of the quad.

Freshman undecided major Matt Gessford said Quakin' wasn't quite what he expected, but he had fun.

"I think meeting people was definitely the best part," he said.

Jorns plans to stay involved with Eastern after retirement

By JESSICA BAKER
Associate news editor

It's not over until it's over.

Even though Eastern President David Jorns has officially set July 1, 1999 as his retirement date, he plans to see through many of the major projects on campus. Many of the projects include beginning the renovation of Booth Library, hiring and installing a new provost and adding momentum to the campus-wide strategic planning.

For the next two years, Jorns plans to focus more on the strategic planning initiative that will lead Eastern into the next century, according to a press release.

The 53-year-old said the strategic planning process is in a critical stage to help guide and serve the university in the future.

Jorns sent a letter of resignation to the Board of Trustees' Chair Susan Gilpin at the July 3 BOT meeting. In the letter, he told BOT members since he has been in higher education for nearly 30 years and in administration for 20 years, it is time for a change.

The Board of Trustees, Eastern's governing body, will determine a timetable for a search for a new president. A search for a new vice president

"The highlights at Eastern for me are the university is better financially, admission standards increased, renovation for Buzzard Hall is nearly completed," for academic affairs and provost has already started.

— David Jorns,

Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs, said he read a recent article about Gov. Jim Edgar retiring that reminded him of Jorns.

"Even though he announced his resignation, he isn't finished working," Hencken said.

Hencken said Jorns will be remembered for the good things he has done as president of Eastern, but he also will accomplish a lot of things before his time is up.

Jorns said he is proud of everything that has been accomplished during his years as president.

Jorns said.

"I believe the campus feels good and everyone's morale is high," he said. "Also, we have increased the operating budgets and the graduation rates have increased."

Jorns said after he retires, he will still be involved around campus, but not with the administration.

"I will be a loyal supporter of Eastern. I may even teach some theater classes part-time."

Jorns earned a bachelor's degree in radio and television, and a master's in speech and drama from Oklahoma State University in 1966 and 1968. He earned a Ph.D. in theater history and drama from the University of California in Los Angeles in 1973, according to a press release.

Jorns came to Eastern in November 1992 from Northern Kentucky University where he was vice president for academic affairs and provost.

After retirement, Jorns plans to live in Oakland, which is 20 minutes east of Charleston.

"My family and I are going to have a house on a golf course," he said. "My wife and I both love to play golf."

Don't fight for crowds; separate Celebration, Quakin' the Quad

As the onslaught of 10,000 students converged upon Eastern this past weekend, the campus took the initiative to offer them a variety of entertainment. Unfortunately, in scheduling two major events, the university may have worked against itself.

The standard bar hopping and various parties fought some serious on-campus competition in the two events: Quakin' the Quad on Saturday and the weekendlong Celebration: A Festival of the Arts and Humanities.

Editorial

Both activities lured students to remain on campus to make new friends and bring old friends together to discuss the summer and the upcoming school year. But they were almost in competition with each other to draw the biggest crowds when they could have served as better fall entertainment a few weeks apart.

Quakin' the Quad has traditionally been the fall's first-weekend event, and Celebration moved in this year to avoid the springtime rainstorms that have hindered it in the past.

The moving-in weekend is a good spot for Celebration and its multicultural displays, considering many students are toting family members around to show them the campus for a day or so.

Quakin' the Quad is a more student-oriented event and might warrant a slot in early September, before the weather gets cold but after students have had the opportunity to hit the bars and the parties for a few weeks.

Also, the academic calendar shows no three-day weekends between Labor Day and Thanksgiving, and Quakin' the Quad could break the pace and be that one last outdoor event before Eastern breaks out the long underwear and heads inside for the winter.

The two events are typically big draws, despite the weather problems. Celebration has been a rain magnet in recent years and nearly escaped storms this past weekend before Sunday's torrents. Rain moved Quakin' the Quad indoors last fall, and electrical problems on Saturday caused some to leave.

But while coordinators cannot anticipate storms, they can control scheduling. Celebration is big enough to have its own weekend. And Quakin' the Quad can attract students a few weeks later, perhaps on the strength of Celebration's success.

The little things Eastern takes for granted

While I don't shrink from criticizing university policy, personnel or decisions, I think it's important to support what is good about this school — what makes it special and valuable as an institution of higher education.

It's easy to recognize that we have excellent faculty and a well-considered curriculum, but for students new to this school, or for those who choose not to pay close attention, some of the nicest things at Eastern include the everyday, unappreciated details.

For instance, the North Quad is one of the prettiest, most taken-for-granted areas of our campus. The groundskeepers must toil in the unpopulated hours of the early morning because I have yet to run across one and have the chance to commend him for the well-planned and colorful landscaping of the summer and early fall.

The North Quad also has some semblance of planning, and its old buildings sitting in the shadow of the turrets of Old Main, reflect a grace and sense of history other areas of campus lack.

Another undervalued advantage of attending this school is our Textbook Rental Service.

Once again this semester, I struggled home with a back-breaking load of anthologies and textbooks. And once again, I was grateful that it wasn't "Textbook Purchase." As an English major at another school, I would pay about $75 for a single anthology. At Eastern, I pay a mere $64.50 to rent 24 texts!

On another note, one of the most criticized and vilified institutions at this school, The Daily Eastern News, is also one of Eastern's treasures.

Few state universities of this size are able or willing to produce a daily paper; unfortunately for the hard-working student reporters and editors, so few students understand this or are willing to find out about the earnest hard work and effort that goes into a single edition of The News.

Furthermore, most students neglect to acknowledge the fact that they glean the majority of their state and national news from what they often consider a sensationalistic and cynical tabloid. Few students subscribe to other publications, and naturally prefer MTV to CNN; this paper provides the majority of this campus with its insight to the outside world.

For students with an eye for planning and architecture, if

JACKIE McGRATH
Regular columnist

"Some of the nicest things at Eastern include the everyday, unappreciated details."

you squint a little bit and ignore the gerbil tube leading to Coleman Hall, you'll note Lumpkin Hall is a sleek, modern building that stands out amid the factory-style walls of Coleman or the dated design of our ill-planned University Union.

Upon entering Lumpkin, its cool marble walls and comfortable, clean furniture almost make me forget I attend Eastern! Such luxurious academic surroundings are not to be found elsewhere on this campus.

Many students also miss out on an important aspect of campus social life: University Board events. The UB is a student-run organization that makes efforts to bring concerts, comedians and speakers to this school.

Unfailingly, low attendance and poor support of the UB's efforts give the organization a bad reputation, and students often overlook the quality programs it sponsors.

It's really important for students to participate in the whole university experience. Support and understanding of what is provided for us to do so is the first step to getting the most out of our time here.

If this is your first semester, or if all your classes are in the South Quad this semester, take some time out of an afternoon (before the sidewalks are flooded with fall rains) to walk through the prettiest part of campus.

Enjoy the fact that you didn't have to buy that awful economics book — that you'll never have to see it again when you turn it in this December.

Attend a lecture sponsored by the University Board and read a review of it in The News.

And understand this: When something with which you disagree occurs, or if you have a problem with an administrative decision, or if you really want the north stairs of Coleman Hall fixed already, then speak up about it!

Voice your opinion about the problems you see to the decision-makers who can solve them.

And in the meantime, remember to enjoy and support what you like about Eastern. In time, when many problems at this school are resolved because attention is focused on them, there won't be anything to dislike about this university.

A reminder of the law now that school buses are back on the street

To the editor:

Throughout the state of Illinois and my seven-county region, the youth of our communities is returning to school. In order to ensure the safety of these children, it is our responsibility to know and adhere to the vehicle laws of Illinois. Please remember that when you meet or follow a school bus, Illinois law requires the following:

- Motorists must stop whenever the stop-signal arm on a school bus is extended and the eight-lamp flashing signal system is in operation with the red signal lamps flashing.
- On two-lane roadways, traffic traveling in both directions must stop.

- On one-lane roadways, all traffic must stop.

- When a highway has at least four lanes of traffic, and at least two of these lanes are traveling in a direction opposite from the bus, only motorists traveling in the same direction as the school bus must stop.

In addition, drivers must be aware of children crossing the streets. In some cases, crossing guards regulate traffic patterns and speed. However, crossing guards are not always present. Please slow down and be aware that a child may suddenly appear in the road.

By using safe driving habits, you can help ensure a safe school year for the children of our region.

Charleston photographer's pictures tell a variety of stories

By MATT ADRIAN
Student government editor

After eight years of taking photos of Celebration, John G. Lichauer decided to show his own pictures at this year's activities.

"I've been taking photos ever since I was 10 years old, but I never thought I was any good," Lichauer said.

Lichauer said his wife and son really encouraged him to show his pictures to the public. Overall, his work has been well received by the public and other photographers.

"I was surprised," he said.

John had his first pictures published in his eighth grade yearbook. The picture captured his best friend receiving a paddling from the school principal. Lichauer said he almost received a paddling for taking the photos.

Photography has always been a hobby, he said. He often comes to Eastern to take photos of students in the quad.

"I look for something that moves me and share that with someone else," Lichauer said.

He said many of his pictures tell a story. He pointed to a group of pictures showing a burning warehouse in Mattoon. The pictures caught the black outline of the burning building against the bright orange flames spurting from the warehouse. He said the photos were actually used in an insurance investigation of the fire.

He then pointed to a series of sunrise photos. The photos were taken from Lichauer's house in Charleston. He took the pictures, because construction would eventually block his view of the sunsets.

"I wanted to get as many sunsets as we could," he said.

Perhaps the most eye-catching photos in his collection are pictures taken while visiting his daughter-in-law in Nairobi.

The pictures show rhinoceroses, lions and other animals. One of the more gruesome scenes showed lions eating an animal. Lichauer said he took the photo from a truck about 20 feet from the lions.

He said he doesn't usually display these photos at shows, but Celebration seemed like a good place to show them.

New e-mail system custom-made for Eastern

By SCOTT BOEHMER
Campus editor

Students trying to use e-mail will find new addresses and several other changes awaiting them as a result of a new system based entirely on Eastern's campus.

The new system, the Panther Educational Network (PEN), is exclusive to Eastern and was first set up in June. However, a full switch to the system was only done a few weeks ago, said Bill Witsman, acting director of academic computing.

The system consists of three main Sun Enterprise system machines connected with a large IBM server, which provides a large amount of disk space. Eastern was previously hooked up to the Educational Computing Network system.

Students who already have e-mail accounts will have to log on the system, set their new password and then log off using a set of instructions provided by Academic Computing. Those instructions were distributed to all residence hall mailboxes and are also available in the Academic Computing offices and the Textbook Rental Center.

New student e-mail accounts will be automatically set up through PEN, and Witsman said he expects most students who switch to PEN "will do it in the first few weeks."

Witsman said most of the accounts on PEN are for students, although there are some set up by faculty and staff in order to help their students.

Both e-mail accounts and student web pages will be assigned a new address under the PEN system, Witsman said. However, he said he does not expect it to take students long to adjust to the new system, as they frequently change addresses and phone numbers.

All e-mail sent to students' old accounts up until Eastern's ECN accounts were terminated have been forwarded to the new PEN accounts, Witsman said.

However, he said the system is still not perfect, and a few software problems are still being figured out. One of the main things he said academic computing will be working on this year is getting PEN to the same operational level as ECN. Ultimately, he said the new system will allow Eastern to tailor what it provides to the university's needs.

"Eastern felt the need to have more control over academic computing environment, and having it now on campus we can make changes that are in the best interest of EIU," Witsman said.

Kappa Delta newest sorority in Eastern greek system

By SCOTT BOEHMER
Campus editor

A new sorority has been added to Eastern's greek system in an attempt to address the large demand for a new organization and to provide more opportunities to join the panhellenic system.

The Kappa Delta sorority, based nationally out of Memphis, Tenn., is the eighth active sorority at Eastern. The most recent sorority to come to Eastern before Kappa Delta was Phi Sigma Sigma, which was disbanded this summer due to low membership levels.

Despite Phi Sigma Sigma's problems, Rebecca Marushak, assistant director of student life/greek affairs said all sororities which remain active at Eastern had no shortage of members last year. The lowest membership among the sororities was about 111 members and the most have about 148, prompting the Panhellenic Council to pursue another sorority last spring.

Kappa Delta is currently considered a colony at Eastern, and will have to achieve certain requirements in order to move to full charter status. Marushak said charter status would probably be achieved around spring 1998.

“The rest of the organizations will be looking to pick up 50 women, where Kappa Delta will be looking to pick up 120 women.”

– Rebecca Marushak, Assistant Director of Student Life/greek affairs

A representative of national Kappa Delta will be living in Charleston for the sorority's first year to help in the installation process and education of new members, which will make up the bulk of their initial activities.

Members of the University of Illinois at Champaign/Urbana's chapter of Kappa Delta will help start up Eastern's chapter during their rush for members.

The sorority also participated in open house rounds of the Panhellenic rush, which was Sunday, and will participate in Tuesday and Wednesday's Greek Forums. However, Kappa Delta's formal rush will not take place until Sept. 22 to 26. Other sororities will have their rush Sept. 5 to 11.

Existing sororities will be able to pledge up to 50 new members, but Marushak said Kappa Delta's numbers should be at least double that number.

“The rest of the organizations will be looking to pick up 50 women, where Kappa Delta will be looking to pick up 120 women,” Marushak said.

The sorority will move into the former Phi Sigma Sigma house in Greek Court in fall 1998, Marushak said.

Marushak said she is confident of the sorority's success because “our greek community here is so successful and there is such a demand to be in a sorority.”

Thunderstorms,bad weather hit central Illinois Sunday

By ANDREW RODGERS
Staff writer

Even though an unexpected thunderstorm blanketed Charleston with rain for much of the afternoon on Sunday, most of the area's really bad weather was confined to counties west of Coles County.

On Sunday, the Lincoln office of the National Weather Service issued tornado warnings in Macon, Christian, Logan and northern Shelby counties, and held severe thunderstorm watches in those counties well into the night.

A representative of the National Weather Service said reports were received of hail and downed power lines a few miles east of Charleston, but suggested the storm system sitting over the area would likely die out overnight.

Local weather observer Dalias Price said the culprit for this weekend's bad weather was the influx of warm moist air from the Gulf of Mexico. Since August 9, Price said there has been only 6 days it hasn't rained in Coles County.

Price spent part of the day on Eastern's campus at Celebration – A Festival of the Arts and Humanities. He said he was lucky to escape dry. Because he took his umbrella, he said he was prepared for the storm, even though it wasn't expected to hit Charleston for another couple of days.

But even though Charleston remained under a severe thunderstorm watch well into the evening, Price said he thought the storms would let up and the weather would improve. “I see this letting up tonight,” he said. “I don't think I'd try to find a place to hide.”

House committee investigates campaign fund-raising issues

WASHINGTON (AP) – The House committee probing campaign fund-raising irregularities has issued subpoenas regarding allegations that a businessman was pushed to contribute to a Cabinet secretary's favorite charity to get a meeting with her, the panel's chairman said Sunday.

“We're going to look at that very thoroughly,” Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., said on CBS's “Face the Nation.” So far, Burton said, his House Government Reform and Oversight Committee has issued eight to 10 subpoenas on the matter.

Democratic donor and businessman Johnny Chung alleged last week that he was asked in 1995 to contribute to then-Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary's favorite charity, Africare, in order to set up a meeting between her and a Chinese businessman.

Chung said he paid $25,000 for a 10-seat table at an Africare fund-raising dinner held in O'Leary's honor.

She has denied that Chung was pressured to contribute.

Burton said Sunday he is considering granting Chung immunity to learn the full story.

“Immunity is a tool that we have to use, I think ... in certain cases in order to get to the bottom of a lot of these allegations,” he said.

The Justice Department's campaign fund-raising task force is also reviewing the allegation.

Republicans have long called for Attorney General Janet Reno to seek the appointment of an independent counsel to handle allegations of campaign finance wrongdoing, including the allegations involving Mrs. O'Leary, and they repeated that call Sunday.

Bears add Chief to lineup

LAKE FOREST (AP) The Bears added depth at wide receiver Sunday by acquiring Chris Penn from the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Bears traded their 1998 fifth-round draft choice for Penn, who started every game last year and led all Chiefs wide receivers with 49 catches. He had 628 yards and five touchdowns.

The move was necessitated by the loss of Curtis Conway, who will miss 6-8 weeks with a broken collarbone.

“We felt like he was a good match for us,” said vice president of player personnel Mark Hatley, who worked in the Chiefs’ front office before joining the Bears this offseason.

“I’ve known him, he played well against us last year and we felt it was a good opportunity to get him.”

Penn, 26, caught five passes for 71 yards, including a 20-yard touchdown, in Kansas City’s 14-10 win over the Bears in Week 12 last year.

A fifth-round draft pick seemed to be a small price to pay for Penn, who was drafted in the third round by the Chiefs in 1993. The 6-foot, 200-pound

Penn led the nation in catches per game (9.55) and yards per game (143.5) his senior year at Tulsa.

“You always like to hold onto your picks, but will there be a receiver around as good as Chris Penn in the fifth round? We didn’t feel there’d be one,” Hatley said.

Penn isn’t likely to have a huge role in next Monday night’s regular-season opener at Green Bay.

“There’s a lot of learning to be done,” Bears coach Dave Wannstedt said. “Everybody thinks you bring a guy in and all of a sudden tomorrow he’s going to line up and play for you. We’re hopeful he can do something Monday night against Green Bay, but we’re not going to stick him in there if he’s not ready.”

Fabien Bowens will play on special teams and be the No. 3 receiver behind Bobby Engram and Ricky Proehl, Wannstedt said.

The Bears also traded a seventh-round draft pick for second-year tackle Jimmy Herndon, who spent his rookie season with Jacksonville as a backup to Tony Boselli and Leon Searcy. Herndon was a fifth-round draft choice of the Jaguars in 1996.

Kuchar wins golf title

LEMONT (AP) – Matt Kuchar won the U.S. Amateur on Sunday, defeating Joel Kribel 2 and 1 in the 36-hole final on Cog Hill Golf and Country Club’s Dubsread course.

Kuchar, a 19-year-old from Lake Mary, Fla., and a rising sophomore at Georgia Tech, was playing in the U.S. Amateur for the first time, but he settled down early in the final.

He was 2-down to the 20-year-old Kribel early in the morning 18, but made three straight birdies on the toughest stretch of holes on the course to take a 3-up lead after 14 holes, and held that advantage at the turn.

The Atlantic Coast Conference freshman of the year last season, Kuchar built an insurmountable lead early in the afternoon 18, parring every hole on the front side and winning four of five in one stretch.

He was 7-up after 26 holes, then withstood Kribel’s late rally to capture the Havemeyer Trophy, a title that went to Tiger Woods the last three years.

“I kept counting down holes,” Kuchar said.

“I was making pars, but Joel just played phenomenal. I couldn’t ask for a better finish.” said Kribel, a junior-to-be at Stanford from Pleasanton, Calif. unraveled as the morning went along, shooting the equivalent of a 4-over-par 76 on the 7,195-yard course, but was just 1-over for 17 holes in the afternoon.

Men's, women's tennis coach departs Eastern

By DENISE RENFRO
Sports editor

As of Aug. 15, Eastern does not have a tennis coach for the men's or the women's teams.

Rosie Kramarski has been the coach for Eastern for the last three years and was named 1995 Coach of the Year in her first season after leading the women's team into second place in the Mid-Continent Conference championship.

Kramarski has decided to quit coaching and go into the private sector on the east coast.

She was also coordinator of the NCAA Life Skills Program for student-athletes.

During her time with the Panthers, her combined record for both men and women was 54-50 with both squads finishing in the first division of the conference tournament each season.

Graduate assistant Andre Herke will become the new assistant coach and will coach the team until a replacement can be found.

Herke is from University of California at Santa Cruz where he was an All-American.

This is Herke's first year with the team and he was hired by Kramarski before she decided to take the other position.

Eastern has begun looking for a coach for both the men's and women's teams.

"We think we'll get a good pool," said Athletic Director Richard McDuffie. "We're beginning to search right now."

The athletes still have to get physicals and be certified before practices can begin next week.

"Fall is sort of a light season, we are going to search for the best person and get someone as soon as possible," McDuffie said.

"I think it will cause a delay in some of the practices, hopefully it will be completed by October. Hopefully the disruption will be minimal," he said.

Rams cut two from team

ST. LOUIS (AP) – There were no big surprises in the St. Louis Rams' final round of cuts on Sunday, with two recent middle draft picks topping the list.

Linebacker Percell Gaskins, a fourth-round draft pick last year, and defensive back Mike Scurlock, a fifth-rounder in 1995, were the most notable names among the seven players released. Both players are injured, necessitating settlements.

Scurlock has been out with a high-ankle sprain, an injury that has kept Rams players out for several weeks in the past few seasons, and his return was questionable this year. Gaskins has a thigh injury.

"I recognize what kind of people they are, what kind of work ethic they have, and also recognize their talent," coach Dick Vermeil said. "But right now we have to go with the people who are dependable and available." Rams also cut offensive linemen Trent Pollard, Robert Couch, defensive tackle Ty Parten, safety Ron Carpenter and linebacker Dwayne Sabb.

played really well in the back."

Today's booters were excited about watching the alumni play.

"I thought it was kind of neat," junior forward Jeff Nix said. "Instead of seeing them play each other, I would have liked to play against them."

Senior mid-fielder Brian Holcombe also enjoyed watching the game.

"I've been here for four years, and this is the first time I've seen an alumni game," he said.

Holcombe sees himself returning to participate in future alumni match-ups.

"Definitely," he said. "At least in the coming years. A lot of my good friends are younger guys on the team."

Sophomore defenseman Tom Dillon was happy to have the chance to meet the alumni.

"I think it's good to get them involved," he said. "I think any time you can get guys with that type of experience, you can learn a lot from them. A lot of the really good teams were from back then."

"I was glad to get to talk them because I never really got the chance to meet them before."

past years – students have argued that if they did, attending games would be much more appealing to them.

Apparently Athletic Director Richard McDuffie thinks the same way.

"The long term goal is to have fans routinely plan tailgating as part of their game day entertainment at O'Brien Stadium," McDuffie said in a press release.

Finally, somebody in the Athletic department thinks the same way as students and actually wants to make them happy. Never thought that would happen.

Will putting a game on television or allowing tailgating behind O'Brien Stadium really make a difference in terms of support of Panther athletics?

Only time will tell.

factor as he was last year when he contributed 439 yards on 72 carries. He also scored six touchdowns.

On the defensive end, Spoo said the linebackers should help to solidify the defense.

Senior linebacker Rodney Pontes returns after leading the Panthers in tackles last year with 82. Another senior, Rodney Wilson, will be looking to back up last season's 71 tackles and five sacks for Eastern.

Assistant head coach John Smith said defensive captains Ethan Banning and Ed Jackson, along with Austin Peay transfer Thomas Williams, should help to propel the defense.

"We're every bit as good and potentially even better (than last year)," Smith said. "It's very important to stay healthy. We're not as deep as we've been in the past."

Smith said while the first defensive unit is strong, the Panthers could run into trouble if they experience injuries and are forced to play some of their more inexperienced players.

"We still need to improve in pass defense," Smith said. "It's something we were a little bit weak on last year."

Spoo brings to the field his largest recruiting class ever – 26. Although he does not anticipate these recruits to have a major impact this year, he said freshman cornerback Corey Lewis may see some playing time, along with wide receiver Rick Tosch.

"These are two that seem to stick out," Spoo said.

One of the intangibles of the season that Spoo hopes will fall in the team's favor is support from the students.

"I hope the fans come out and support us throughout the year," he said. "That has an impact on our performance."

Eastern finally realizes fan support needs improvement

Sometimes, when the outlook is grim and the odds are against you, it's best to simply quit – you know, throw in the towel, roll over and die, bite the big one, etc., etc.

Well, it's good to see that's not what the Eastern athletic department has done and they are finally attempting to solve the age old problem of fan support of Panther teams – or shall I say lack of fan support.

The Panther football team opens the season Thursday night with an away game against Western Illinois, where the Panthers bring in a No. 6 ranking in the NCAA Division I-AA poll, while the Leathernecks begin the season at No. 9.

In years past, the only way to see such a game would be to go tootin' down the highway to Macomb. Not this year.

This will be the first Panther away game since 1989 to be shown on live television, and can be seen on WEIU Channel 9 in Charleston and Mattoon and also on cable channel 51, at 6:30 p.m.

It has been said that this first game, between two top 10 teams, is one of the biggest games of the season for the Panthers.

What better way to muster up support than to bring the "big game" right to the fans?

A win here can do wonders to make fans out of WEIU's captive audience. A brilliant idea, indeed.

One would think this is just a momentary stroke of genius by the Eastern athletic department, but then right before our eyes, they do it again.

Prior to the Panthers game against Tennessee-Martin on Sept. 13, Eastern will host "Oldies at O'Brien," a tailgate contest that hopefully will increase fan support and enthusiasm for Panther football games.

The contest is broken down into three categories, Panther Tradition, On Stage, and Bargain Basement Prices.

The deadline to enter the contest is Tuesday, Sept. 1 at 4 p.m., so get the entries in early.

Allowing fans to tailgate may not be as significant as the game being on television, but for once there is an effort being made by the athletic department to draw a fan following – something we really never have seen on a consistent basis before.

Tailgating and Panther football have not gone together in

Panthers prepare for season opener

Gridders looking to avenge last year's 10-7 Homecoming loss to Western

Things are looking up for the Panther football team as they enter the year picked to win the Ohio Valley Conference, not to mention a No. 6 ranking in the NCAA I-AA poll.

The No. 6 ranking is the highest a Panther team has had under Head Coach Bob Spoo since he joined the team in 1987.

"It should bolster our confidence," Spoo said. "But games are won in the field and not in the press."

The team is in search of its third straight playoff appearance, which would be the first time the Panthers accomplished such a feat.

"Making the playoffs is the goal of every I-AA team," Spoo said. "I think we're capable of getting there – obviously you'd like to get past the first game."

Getting past the first game is something they have not been able to do, losing 34-29 to Stephen F. Austin in 1995 and bowing out in the first round 21-14 to Northern Iowa last year.

In preparation for the season opener against No. 9 Western Illinois on Thursday night, the Panthers have been participating in two-a-day workouts.

"It has been the longest pre-season camp in recent years," Spoo said.

"They held up under it and performed well. They were intense and aggressive."

"The cooler weather certainly helped them get through it."

As far as the game against Western is concerned, the outcome of the game can have a very heavy influence on the rest of the season.

"It's a significant football game," Spoo said. "(The game) will certainly tell us a lot about our football team, where we are and where we need to be."

Spoo said one of the stronger points of the team lies in the Panther quarterback and running backs.

Junior quarterback Mike Simpson is coming off a season in which he completed 66 percent of his passes, nearly breaking a 46 year old OVC record set by Morehead State's Charles Porter. Porter completed 66.2 percent of his passes during the 1950 season.

Despite the stellar performance last year, Spoo is still convinced that Simpson has not reached his full potential.

"He had a fine junior year and I think he can improve on his completion percentage," Spoo said. "He's one of our captains and it's important for the quarterback to lead the team."

Junior fullback Conrad Praamsma and junior tailback Justin Lynch will also return for the Panthers.

Lynch is coming off last season's third place ranking in the OVC in rushing with 912 yards and 11 touchdowns on 201 carries.

Praamsma also looks to be a

Nearly 30 players leave jobs, family behind to take to the field

Comebacks were the order of the day in Saturday's alumni men's soccer game.

Former members of the men's soccer team came back to their old stomping grounds, and the blue team came back in the second half for a 3-2 win over the white team.

This year's turn out was large, with nearly 30 returning players – the alumni were able to form two sides and have substitutes.

The action was continuous throughout the two 40 minute halves. Both sides moved the ball well, and each had several opportunities to touch the back of the net.

The blue team scored three goals after the break, including one on a penalty kick to climb back from a 2-0 halftime deficit.

The white team had climbed to their lead by controlling the action throughout the first half.

The players generally agreed that getting together with the old crew was their main reason for their participation.

"It was really good to get together and see the guys," St. Louis resident and ex-Panther booter Dan Bruns said.

their days on the Lakeside pitch.

"I had three kids, got a Master's Degree, and I'm in the concrete business," Bruns said.

Greg Murh has stayed in the game since his time as a Panther. Currently, Murh is playing for the Chicago Stingers of the United System of Independent Soccer Leagues.

"I played in their initial year. I took a year off the next year and I played last year," he said.

What do the former Panthers think of the squad of today?

"They seemed to move the ball well," Murh said. "They looked a little off, but they just had preseason a week ago."

"They looked pretty good," Bruns said. "(Head coach) Tim (McClements) is really starting to shape things up."

"They played good," Robert Tomic said. "Maciej Kusmierz
